? What is the difference between a fully-automatic and a semi-automatic defibrillator?

Semi-automatic defibrillators require the user to press a button to deliver a shock after the machine detects a heart rhythm that needs defibrillation, whereas fully-automatic defibrillators deliver the shock automatically without user intervention.

Evacuation, Immobilisation & Patient Handling

Our evacuation and immobilisation gear, including chairs, stretchers, and more, is essential for safely moving casualties in emergencies.

Key products like the Prometheus Traction Splint and SAM Pelvic Sling II support EMS teams, while the Spencer Basket Stretcher and Ferno Scoop 65 EXL aid in rescue operations.

Facilities utilise our equipment, like the Banana Board, for ease in patient handling, prioritising durability, versatility, and comfort.
